SUMMARY PROFILE

I have built up a practice with many solicitors, insurance companies, local authorities and government departments. I also take instructions directly from individuals. I have appeared in and prepared reports for, the County Court, the High Court, Crown Court, magistrates' court and Tribunals for both defendants and claimants. I am known for my hard work, excellent client care and meticulous preparation of cases, often exceeding 40,000 pages. My background in business and human resources is a strength when advising on white-collar crime, health and safety and regulatory proceedings. I have over 20 years' experience in the assessment of individuals in occupational, forensic, clinical and educational settings. I cover all areas of personal injury and medical negligence including the ability to work; road traffic accidents; anxiety; mental health, psychological harm, workplace injuries, workplace stress, occupational health, ill health retirements, bullying, sexual abuse, post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) and neuropsychological assessments. I have considerable experience in equality and diversity. Specialist interests include assessment of head injuries and memory loss, psychological testing, children, families, assessment of intellectual functioning, and assessments that consider the impact of drugs, alcohol and strokes. I have experience in assessing the effects of injury on the loss of earnings. Solicitors consistently praise my work; my expert reports have frequently secured convictions and acquittals. More than 95% of cases settle on the basis of my reports. Waiting times are short.
