Summary Profile: I began working with people with autism and ADHD in 1985 when I started to work as a volunteer at Rose Hill Special School in Nottingham. The school specialises in children with autism and challenging behaviour. I then worked with senior educational psychologists in Nottingham and Derby on the assessment of children with special educational needs and contributed as a visiting lecturer to the master's degree training programmes in educational psychology. I continued to work with young people who had difficulties with special educational needs and mental illness as a youth and community worker and in private practice. In my roles as an HR professional and occupational psychologist, I frequently dealt with occupational health cases involving mental health and neurodiversity.

In 1998 I was appointed as the Managing Director of Fanon Trust, a charity which provided mental health services with accommodation to individuals with complex mental health needs. I worked with Dr Kwame McKenzie, professor of psychiatry and psychiatrist Dr Eleanor Cole. Since 2015 I have also benefited from the professional supervision of Professor David Lane, a HCPC registered clinical, forensic, counselling and occupational psychologist. I undertook formal training in mental health at work as part of an HCPC-accredited master's degree in occupational psychology. I also undertook training in clinical forensic psychology as part of my HCPC-accredited master's degree in forensic psychology. I hold a certificate of competence in forensic test use. I am qualified and authorised by test publishers to use a wide range of tests to diagnose ASD, ADHD and mental illness and undertake continuous professional development in the diagnosis of ADHD, ASD and mental illness. Since 2015 I have held full membership in the British Psychological Society's Division of Neuropsychology based on over two years of supervised experience in neuropsychological assessment by an independent clinical psychologist. I provide therapy for a range of mental health problems, primarily through AXA-PPP healthcare. I frequently carry out private assessments of personality disorders. I act as advisor to the Academy of Royal Medical Colleges on reasonable adjustments in exams for medical professions with neurodiverse conditions. I carry out approximately 45 autism diagnostic assessments and 77 ADHD assessments per year.
